Panduan Pengguna

A. Pengadopsi

Pengguna dapat mendaftar akun dan login ke dalam sistem. Setelah masuk, pengadopsi dapat menjelajah daftar hewan, menggunakan fitur pencarian dan filter, melihat detail hewan, serta mengajukan permohonan adopsi. Pengadopsi juga dapat memantau status pengajuan adopsi dengan status pending, approved, rejected, atau cancelled. Selain itu, pengadopsi dapat memberikan donasi kepada shelter melalui sistem pembayaran Midtrans, menjelajah daftar shelter yang tersedia, serta membaca artikel informatif seputar adopsi, perawatan hewan, dan edukasi kesejahteraan hewan yang disediakan oleh platform.

B. Shelter

Shelter melakukan pendaftaran melalui menu khusus dan menunggu proses verifikasi oleh admin. Setelah akun shelter terverifikasi, shelter dapat melengkapi dan memperbarui profil, menambahkan data hewan baru, mengedit informasi hewan, serta mengatur status hewan agar ditampilkan atau disembunyikan dari pencarian publik. Shelter juga dapat mereview pengajuan adopsi yang masuk dengan menyetujui atau menolak permohonan berdasarkan hasil evaluasi. Selain itu, shelter dapat melihat artikel yang tersedia sebagai media informasi dan edukasi. Fitur laporan donasi yang diterima oleh shelter masih dalam tahap pengembangan.

C. Admin

Admin melakukan login ke dashboard untuk mengelola dan memantau sistem. Admin memiliki wewenang untuk memverifikasi akun shelter baru, memantau data pengguna, shelter, hewan, dan pengajuan adopsi. Selain itu, admin bertanggung jawab dalam manajemen artikel, yang meliputi pembuatan, pengeditan, penghapusan, dan pengelolaan kategori artikel yang ditampilkan kepada pengguna sebagai konten edukatif. Fitur analitik lanjutan pada dashboard admin masih dalam tahap pengembangan.

Understanding common canine health issues helps you recognize problems early and take preventive measures. Regular veterinary care is essential, but awareness empowers you to be proactive.

Obesity affects over half of dogs. Excess weight leads to diabetes, joint problems, heart disease, and shortened lifespan. Prevent obesity through portion control, measured meals, limited treats, and regular exercise. If your dog is overweight, consult your vet for a safe weight loss plan.

Dental disease is extremely common. By age three, most dogs show signs of periodontal disease. Bacteria from infected gums can spread to vital organs. Prevent dental issues with regular brushing, dental chews, and professional cleanings. Watch for bad breath, difficulty eating, or swollen gums.

Ear infections plague dogs with floppy ears or those who swim frequently. Signs include head shaking, scratching, odor, or discharge. Keep ears clean and dry. After swimming or bathing, dry ears thoroughly. Regular checks catch infections early.

Skin allergies cause intense itching and discomfort. Environmental allergens, food sensitivities, or flea bites trigger reactions. Symptoms include scratching, licking, red skin, or hair loss. Identify and avoid triggers when possible. Your vet can recommend treatments for relief.

Arthritis affects many older dogs and some younger ones with joint issues. Signs include stiffness, difficulty rising, reluctance to jump or climb stairs, and decreased activity. Maintain healthy weight to reduce joint stress. Supplements, medications, and physical therapy can help manage pain.

Heartworm is preventable but potentially fatal. Transmitted by mosquitoes, heartworms damage the heart and lungs. Prevention is simple – monthly medication year-round. Annual testing ensures your dog remains heartworm-free.

Parasites like fleas, ticks, and intestinal worms cause various problems. Fleas trigger allergies and transmit diseases. Ticks carry Lyme disease and other illnesses. Intestinal parasites affect digestion and overall health. Use preventive medications and maintain good hygiene.

Kennel cough spreads easily in social settings. This respiratory infection causes persistent coughing. Vaccination helps prevent it, especially important for dogs who interact with others.

Regular veterinary check-ups catch problems early. Annual exams for young dogs, twice yearly for seniors. Don't wait for obvious illness – preventive care is key to long, healthy life.
